THE SUPREME COURT.-The court was engaged yesterday in hearing the argument in the case of J. P. Deveaux ads. Rowna Clark and others. No other case was heard.

THE MATCH GAME OF BASE BALL played yesterday afternoon between the Franklin and Hunkadori Base Ball Clubs was wen by the former-the score standing Franklin 35, Hunkadori 27.

THE SOUTH.—We have received a copy, in pamphlet form, of the address delivered by W L. Trenholm, Esq., on the third anniversary of the Charleston Board of Trade, April 7, 1869. It is neatly printed by Walker, Evans & Cogswell.

PERSONAL.—General J. B. Kershaw, of Camden, is at the Charleston Hotel. Chancellor Carroll and General M. C. Butler are in the city.

Senator Sprague is now resting in Aiken after his return from Memphis.

RECOVERY OF THE BODIES OF MRS. DOUGLASS and Sow.—The sloop Malta, which was swamped in the harbor during the squall of Saturday last, was towed up to Adger's Wharf yesterday, and the bodies of Mrs. Douglass and one of her sons were recovered. The other son Beauregard O'Neill, is still missing. Coroner Whiting held an inquest, and a verdict of "accidental drowning" was returned.

A CONCERT .- In the present dearth of amuse ments, it will doubtless gratify our readers to learn that Master F. Carri, the wonderfully gifted Carolina violinist, has been induced to give a concert in this city, which will take place on Friday evening next. Master Carri will be ssisted by his mother, an accomplished pianst, and by that splendid and well drilled vocal corps, the Sængerbund Teutonia. A rich mu-sical treat may be anticipated.

THE DEVEREUX MEDAL .-- Mr. John H. Devereux has presented to the Sisters of Mercy a large and very handsome silver medal, which is to be given to the most proficient of the wenty-three orphan boys whom the Sigters have in their charge at the Asylum in Cannonstreet. The examination for the medal will be sonducted by Bishop Lynch, and will take place as soon as practicable. The medal bears the following inscription: "May, 1869. Devereux Medal. Reward of Merit."

SANITABY CHANGES .- The patients of the Hampstead Hospital have all been removed to the new wing of the Mazyck-street Hospital, where they will be under the treatment of Dr. S. L. Lockwood. The change which has been completed by adding the east wing of the House of Correction to the Mazyck-street Hospital now furnishes room for many white inratids, and concentrates the Lospital patients at a single and easily accessible point. The new wing has an apartment specially devoted o women under female nurses, who bestow very attention on the inmates. The condition of these two hospitals is unexceptionable.

A BOLD HOMBERY.—The store of Mesers. Clacius & Witte, opposite THE NEWS office, was-broken into on Wednesday night last, and several bage of coffee, a quarter cask of brandy, and a number of small articles were stolen. There were plain marks where a wheelbarrow had been used to carry off the booty. Application was made for a detective three times on Thursday and again on Friday and on Saturday, on which day an officer did go to the spot. No pursuit in such a case was likely to be successful unless made while the trail was hot, and we hope that there may be some good reason why the detectives were so slow in making their appearance.

THE QUO WARRANTO CASE.

According to appointment, Associate Justice Willard resumed, yesterday afternoon, the hearing of the quo warranto against T. J. Mackey, David Barrow, and J. F. Greene, Al-

ment to the single point whether this court has the right to try this case, notwithstanding the returns. There is a class of cases in this State where there was no trial by jury. He contended, also, that the property that existed in the office was not such property as as would require the intervention of a jury to deprive one of. He contended that the Legislature had a right to provide for the trial of a right involving an office without a trial by jury. The very office purporting to be held by the party is an office from which other persons were ousted without the intervention of a jury, and he placed into office by legislative enactment. The court in the recent case decided that the Legislature may do what it pleases in reference to an office of a corporation. If the Legislature then has the right to eject a party from office without the intervention of a jury, it certainly has a right to order his right to the office to be tried without a a jury. If the Legislature has the right to provide for a method of trying these cases, has it done so? He then proceeded to review the mode of procedure from the early days of the common law up to the present time. The act of 1818 gave a judge sitting at chambers a right to try quo warranto, and make a decision as though they were in open court, and gave the parties the right of appeal to the constitutional courts of appeal. The case could go to a jury only when it comes to a question of damages. It is competent for the court only to award judgment of ouster or discharge

He also contended that the giving of the jurisdiction carries with it the right to try-because without the right to try, the jurisdiction would be a nullity, and the act giving the court jurisdiction in the subject matter of a quo warranto gives it jurisdiction to do everything else, and decide the case on a quo warranto. It followed, therefore, that if the court did not have a jury, the court coul . try the issue itself. The court should first hear the testimony, and if it appears-from this that there is a question of fact, it could be submitted to a

Mr. Bowen followed for the respondents. He contended that the powers which the court ossessed and those granted by the Legislature there might be cases in which the facts were not disputed, and these cases the court could try, but in this case the allegation is denied. The act provides that justices can hear and determine issues of fact when both parties file their consent; and this implies that the party has a right to demand a trial. He contended that by the thirteenth and fourteenth articles of the constitution the parties had a right to trial by jury.

He also insisted that it was the province of the jury to decide as to the intention, in case a party be moved from the State. Much had been said about haste. If they wish to stop Council, they can do it just as well by ousting their own men. His clients had been elected by the people of Charleston, and the parties ought certainly be content to give them a fair trial. He then cited a number of cases in support of his position, that issues of fact must always be tried by juries.

Mr. Tharin followed also for the respondents. He said that in mandamus the return of the respondents is conclusive until falsified by a jury. In this case they have not only failed to falsify the return by a jury, but they have not even falsified it by a jurat. The allegations in the information was not even avorn to, and is just so much waste paper. If the party demands a jury, the court has no right to decide the question. The residence is a question of fact, and could be best decided by twelve men. He contended that the whole proceedings were unconstitutional. It was a question that should have been brought up by indictment, and not by quo warranto. The respondents now have to answer a clause which had not been set up, and he, therefore, claimed that they should be dismissed.

Mr. Lord submitted the case to the court without adding to the argument of his prede-

The argument, it will be perceived, was confined to the question of whether the case belonged properly to a jury, and did not touch the real merits. The Judge announced that he would require some time to consider the motion, and would endeavor to announce his decision as soon as possible.

U.S. CIRCUIT COURT--CHIEFJUSTICE S. P. CHASE, PRESIDING.

The court opened at 11 o'clook yesterday morning, Chief Justice Chase and Judge Bryan on the bench. The court resumed the consideration of the Mr. Pressley proposed to confine the argucase of the steamship Moneka vs. Richard Arnold. Libel for damages to three horses in transitu from New York to Charleston. A. H. Brown, Esq., was heard for appellee. Decision reserved. Steamer City Point vs. James P. Smith. Libel for damages sustained by appellee in the breaking of the gang plank while passing from the steamer to the wharf. A. H. Brown, Esq.,

appeared for appellant; G. D. Bryan, Esq., for

The grounds taken by counsel for appellant for setting aside the decree of the District Judge were that the appellee, Smith, was one of of that class denominated as runners, and had no right on board the steamer; that he remained there until admonished that the vessel was about to leave the wharf, and that he and his companions then made a rush, jumping from the wheel-house upon the gang plank, which broke and precipitated Smith into the water, which resulted in his instituting an action for damages. Counsel cited the act of 1852, which sel without permission. Counsel for appellee replied, showing that these men were employed by a regular shipping master to take on board the steamer a number of sailors going to Savannah, and that the act of 1852 did not apply.

prohibits runners from going on board a ves-

The Chief Justice held that it was clear by the evidence, that the plank was defective and ought not to have been used for passengers going on board, or passengers from the steamer. It is the duty of the master to provide a plank of sufficient strength, and he was bound to provide for all the emergencies of ordinary travelling that may occur either in going on board or leaving the vessel. It would be no excuse for a master to say that there was a rush. It did not appear that the appellee in this case was there as a runner, but was apparently employed in putting men on board who were to be transported on the steamer to another port, under a contract with the vessel itself. The act of 1852 did not apply to this case. That gives the master power to protect himself against runners as trespassers, and have them punished for a misdemeanor, but it does not give him any power to have an insufficient plank, by which any person may fall and sustain damage. The decree of the District Judge was therefore affirmed.

Steamer Moneka vs. Strauss & Vance. Libel for damages on breach of contract of affreightment. Porter & Conner for appellant; J. N. Nathan, Esq., for appellees. Appeal dis-

Albert O. Stone, appellee, vs. Schooner Grapeshot, and owners, appellants. Libel for supplies furnished vessel. A. H. Brown and Edward McCrady, Sr., Esqs., for appellants; Porter and Conner for appellees. James G. and D. C. Marsh, appellees, vs.

Schooner Grapeshot, and owners, appellants. Same counsel. Kanapaux & Lanneau, appellees, vs. Schooner Grapeshot, and owners, appellants. G. D. Bryan for appellees; A. H. Brown and Edward McCrady for appellants. The Chief Justice affirmed the decree of the District Judge in the above cases. Nothing is clearer than that the owners of a vessel are bound by the action of the master who is appointed by them and represents them. Where a master obtains supplies for his ship, necessary and proper for the vessel, whether in her own or a foreign port, the owners are liable. and the remedy exists against the owners. If the master undertakes to bind the owners in a matter beyond the limit of his employ, the owners would not be liable; but there was no such complaint in these cases. The owners were liable either jointly or severally, and proceedings against them could not be arrested by showing that all the owners were not served with notice of process. The parties furnishing the material or supplies could have their remedy against the agents or owners of the ressel, and if one of the owners failed to make settlement, the remedy must be sought against
